Better Slider. The sash on Lincoln's redesigned Glider Windows slide on nylon pads instead of rollers for easier, quieter operation, says the company. Other improvements include coped joints rather than miters and an optional extruded aluminum cladding that's available in 17 stock colors and unlimited custom colors. Glazing options include an exterior coating called NEAT that supposedly resists dirt and streaks. A fully equipped 5'-4" x 5'-0" unit costs about $1,160.

Traditional Profile. Replicating a historic molding profile no longer requires custom millwork or a scavenger hunt. The 66 varieties of casing, base, crown, chair-rail, and panel moldings in the KB Classical Moulding Collection are milled from domestically sourced yellow poplar, then primed and sanded before being shipped to the end-user. Casing prices range from $1.50 to $4.40 per foot; crowns cost between $1.30 and $3.85 per foot.
