CLASSICAL MOULDING

CONTAINED WITHIN THE PAGES OF THIS UNIQUE CATALOG you will find several series of Classical and Historical moulding. We have been very meticulous in our research and have taken great care in depicting them as historically and architecturally accurate as possible.

These are the mouldings which were installed in many period homes of the 18th and 19th centuries. If the terms Early American, Georgian, Greek Revival, Federal or Colonial Revival pique your interest then you will surely find these profiles intriguing.

Choosing the correct moulding profiles will transform an ordinary room into one with style, beauty, and ambiance. While these craftsmen understood that combining various mouldings produces beautiful results, they also understood that proper moulding selection can have a huge impact on the overall character and value of a home.

Many of the profiles are available in a range of sizes in order to accommodate different room configurations and ceiling heights while still maintaining proper scale and proportion.

These profiles are in-stock and ready to be delivered at your convenience. We look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

Douglas R. Kuiken

The profile above has rounded edges and shallow mill lines, creating a lack of definition and a softening of the original design.

KB CLASSICAL MOULDING

Kuiken Brothers Classical Moulding profiles have deep incisions carved into the poplar creating strong shadow lines allowing the original classical design to define the space where it is installed.

KB CLASSICAL MOULDING

The Early American Collection of mouldings feature subtle and clean lines. In the Colonial Era the most common type of moulding ornamentation was a small 3/8" bead cut into the edge of a piece of wood. It helped to add decoration and simple adornment to the corner of wood posts and pieces of trim. Today, the simple, flat casing and baseboard with the handsome bead on one side offer a Shaker starkness. This collection works very well for Arts & Crafts and Craftsman style interiors.

KB CLASSICAL MOULDING

This collection of profiles are typical to what would have been used in Georgian style homes from the 1750's through the 1770's. A pre-revolutionary style named after England's King George which would be found in the homes of wealthy merchants and well-to-do land owners. The base and casings have bold shapes and proud projections and the crown is typically highlighted with a dentil moulding in public and formal spaces.

A mix of styles, this package represents a transitional period as we move from the Georgian to the Federal Style. These transitional details, with a mix of bold and light profiles, were typical in the 1770's and 1780's. This style would have been present in more upscale homes of the period.

CLASSICAL MOULDING

The Federal style became popular after the Revolutionary War between the 1770's and through the early 1800's. Inspired by English architect Robert Adam, the Federal mouldings are much lighter and more delicate than the bold Georgian Mouldings. The cavetto shapes and simple beads help the moulding to read as more refined in a room.

KB CLASSICAL MOULDING

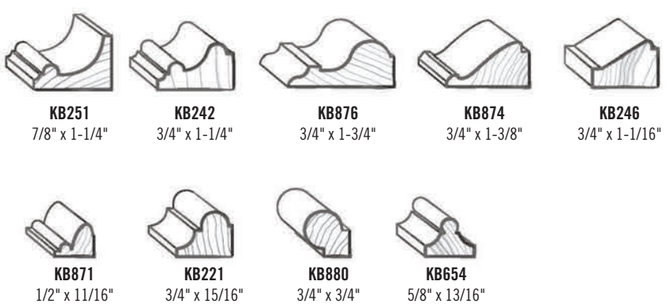

The Greek Revival collection is a late classical style found between 1820 and 1860. The architecture was inspired by new discoveries in Greece and our realization and association with their spirit of democracy. The mouldings in this period are plain and bold with little decoration. They feature flat faces in an effort to mimic stone. It looks great today as a simple yet bold application, often chosen by those looking for a modern, contemporary look.

Reduction in Trim

Have you heard about architect Robert Adam's Logical Theory of Reduction in Trim? In summary, it's advisable to reserve more intricate moulding details for front entries, foyers, and dining rooms, where you're more likely to entertain guests. It is perfectly acceptable to opt for smaller moulding profiles in second-floor areas or private spaces, such as bedrooms and hallways. Our Classical Moulding collection is truly unique and allows you to follow this theory while maintaining a consistent look and feel, even when ceiling heights vary. We offer every casing in 5-1/2", 4-1/2", and 3-1/2" proportionately scaled replicas. Each base moulding comes with a matching base cap, allowing you to adjust the height. Crown mouldings are available in at least two, if not three, different size options.
